

SportsArt makes servicing a priority

As part of a major established international manufacturer of cardio and strength training equipment with a network of over 70 distribution companies world-wide, SportsArt Fitness UK know the importance of professional technical servicing and maintenance of all fitness equipment. Whilst the very nature of accidents and breakdowns are inconvenient and unpredictable, there are some things that can and must be planned for by anyone looking to maintain safe and trouble free operation of fitness equipment. It is this common sense approach that has recently won SportsArt's dedicated servicing division contracts with semi professional through to leading premiership football clubs to maintain and service its fitness equipment.

Although SportsArt offer a comprehensive range of quality fitness equipment, its engineers are highly trained on all makes and models of equipment installed throughout the United Kingdom.

In managing any fitness facility, be it at football or leisure clubs, you have a legal duty of care to ensure that all operating equipment is maintained to a safe standard, ensuring maximum care has been taken to avoid any possible accidental injury to users of the equipment.

SportsArt offer a number of flexible approaches to servicing to meet various levels of equipment use and budgets but will not compromise on the high standards of safety and service. Following each service a report will inform you of what work is required, prioritising items for attention and provide an estimate for reinstating equipment to an optimum condition.

A 'Total Care' service package not only demonstrates that you have addressed duty of care issues, it can be cost effective as preventative maintenance can often protect equipment from becoming seriously damaged if remedial action is taken. It also means that scheduled maintenance ensures reliability of equipment operations, longevity in use and best possible return on your investment - so you know it makes sense!
